

The Virtual Department of Evidence-Based Medicine was established at Tabriz Medical School in 2010. The goal of this multidisciplinary department is to establish evidence-based thinking through appropriate knowledge transfer and the application of valid evidence to promote community health.

In this department, which brings together academic experts from all over the country, students at various levels are trained in the topics of evidence-based practice, management, and evidence-based policymaking. In addition, the department explains various methodologies for evidence-based education in the health system and designs and implements relevant evidence-based health research.
